

“ I’m not interested in partisan bickering.
The only fight that has my attention is the fight for Colorado families. ”

Rachel Zenzinger: Bipartisanship that works for you.

When people elect politicians to represent them in important positions, like the State Senate, there's no time for party bickering. Elected officials should work with colleagues to get things done. That means, there is no room for partisanship.

Rachel has already proven her ability to get Real Results, completing her single session in the Senate with all eight of her successful bills receiving bipartisan support. Those bills improved childhood education, protected our seniors, made our veterans' lives easier, and supported local businesses.

Rachel looks past party differences to find common ground to achieve Real Results for Colorado families.
